

The difference between a high school Senior and a college Freshman is – 3 months!!! Will your soon-to-be Freshman be ready? Will YOU be ready? Here's how to spend your summer vacation...

There Are No IEP's In College: Preparing to Fly Without a Net!

A workshop for PARENTS of graduating high school Seniors with disabilities

You son/daughter has been accepted for school this Fall...

Your FAFSA form is filled out and the tuition bills are paid...

You'll be visiting the campus for orientation in just a few weeks...

DO YOU HAVE THE FEELING THIS IS ALL MOVING TOO FAST???

Then this workshop is for you!

Who: Parents of students with disabilities who are graduating high school this June and starting college in the Fall

What: A 3-hour workshop to arm you with critical information to facilitate a smooth transition

Where: The Community Room at the Shops on Lane Avenue
1585 W. Lane Ave. (Just off 315 in Upper Arlington)

When: June 8, 6-9:00 PM

Why: Leaving for college is a big step for every graduating high school student, but particularly so for students with disabilities – and their parents! This is a chance to learn from “insiders” what to expect and how best to prepare

Learn:

How to identify the paperwork regarding disability that you will need – and who to hand it over to!

How to initiate important contacts with school personnel

How to prepare the student for his/her changing role

How to prepare YOURSELF for his/her changing role!

How to pack (and what to buy) to make sure everything is there

How to identify and teach necessary survival skills before it's too late

How to prepare yourself for those inevitable panicky phone calls

You will leave this workshop with a “to-do” list and a Plan of Action!

Offered by:

Dr. Lydia Block, Educational Consultant and nationally acclaimed expert with 25+ years experience as a disability service provider at both public and private colleges: Dr. Block is a much sought-after speaker at college transition fairs/activities including the most recent College Transition for Learning Disabilities

Dr. Jane Jarrow, Consultant in postsecondary disability and former Executive Director of the Association on Higher Education and Disability; Dr. Jarrow brings both her professional experience as a nationally recognized expert in postsecondary disability support programs, and her practical experience as the proud PARENT of a daughter with a significant disability in the UAHS Class of 2009 (starting college in August!)

This workshop is specifically geared for PARENTS (that is, not for the students, themselves). We welcome participation by either one or both parents, but we need to know how many people will be in attendance in order to assure that we have adequate materials available. For this reason, please CALL or EMAIL Jane Jarrow (614-488-5681 – JaneJarrow@aol.com) to request registration materials (which can be sent or emailed to you at that time).

Cost:

1 parent - $110.00

Both parents - $135.00

IMPORTANT NOTE: Participants will receive a fully loaded flash drive (one per family) with readings on transition (some for parents, some for students, some for both!), checklists for things to pack and things to do, an annotated webliography of transition websites and information, and more.

There are only two things a parent can give a child...

One is roots, the other is wings!
